ARE WE ACCIDENTALLY 'ABLEIST'?

It's been a weird time lately hasn't it? The woman who embodied the strength and pride of a family of nations, succumbed, as we all must, to the destiny we all share, in the shedding and resting of the body which has worked hard in the carrying of hopes, fears, service, power and children. Over the last six months of speculation about the Queen's failing health, being kept discretely out of sight lest anyone think less of her, has taken me back to a time when I couldn't face going to the one place and gathering where my comfort, strength & hopes were most readily found - church. I stayed away for about 18 months... it was just too embarrassing, too difficult. I couldn't face not blending in, not standing up (like you are told to) for those hymn verses (HOW many?!). People would think I was either disrespectful or a nuisance, causing a fuss etc. It was best for everyone if I stayed at home, kept the mobility aids I begrudgingly used out of sight, just like Her Majesty and her PR team chose to do. I wonder if anyone dared to challenge the Queen's thinking about this? I am glad that someone challenged me. In the way that perhaps only good friends can, she 'socked it to me' straight!! She told me that I was being prejudiced about being seen as disabled. She called me "ableist"! I was mortified - because she was right.

Fast forward 10 years and using a walking stick and wheelchair in my full time work and ministry as a vicar and someone who helps churches to put things in place so that nobody feels like a nuisance or a bother. Our churches are places of invitation, where people may find comfort, strength to face difficult days, friendship and hope which transcends the struggles of our frail, limited bodies and lives.

So now I recognise the prejudice, the 'ableism' in myself, the world around me and in the church I have made vows to faithfully serve. As Christians this isn't yet another 'ism' we are afraid to be caught out being - accidentally or otherwise. It's something we should help one another to change so that nobody would be too embarrassed or ashamed to seek prayer, worship, comfort and fellowship in their parish church.

There are actually loads of simple and cheap ways to begin this journey in our churches. I'd love to share them with you so why not join a growing network of parishes learning together how to be the one place people can come truly as they are and find the grace we all need.

Looking at Lichens

November can be a quiet month for wildlife spotting apart from fungi, but have you ever taken a closer look at the lichens growing on the monuments within your churchyard? Forming a mosaic of colour these vary from simple, powdery scatterings and crusts to more elaborate leafy or even bushy structures. They are particularly rich and varied in unpolluted sites with clean air.

Lichens consist of two or more organisms living together as one. This is usually a fungus which forms the visible part of the lichen and within, protected by the fungal threads, its algal cells can photosynthesise and provide food for the whole lichen. So, the fungus gets food and the alga gets shelter!

Churchyards are outstanding for lichens; there are approximately 2,000 lichen species in the UK, over 700 of these have been found in churchyards with half of them rarely if ever found elsewhere. Churchyard monuments provide a range of rock types with nooks and crannies caused by the monument shape and the carving of words and symbols. All of these nooks and crannies may have slightly different conditions of substrate, light, moisture and temperature which may suit different lichen species.

Lichens start to colonise as soon as something is set still, be it stone, wood or even rubber dustbin lids! Take a look at your older monuments and think how long the lichens may have been slowly growing there. The British Lichen Society has surveyed most churchyards so visit our atlas of biological records (burialgrounds.nbnatlas.org) and see how many have been found in churchyards near you.

Lichens don't need us to look after them but do need unchanging conditions so please encourage people to resist scrubbing them off, which also scratches the stone and makes it erode quicker, try and prevent ivy from smothering them and if a monument needs moving, try and erect it in the same orientation so that the conditions of light and shade remain constant. Other than that, take a magnifying glass and slip into the amazing miniature world of lichens.....

All the best, Harriet Carty

PTO Granted!

We had the welcome news a few days ago that Rev Philip and Rev Patricia Robinson have at last received their official “Permission to Officiate” from the Diocese of Lichfield! Philip and Patricia joined us at St Luke’s earlier in the year since retiring from full-time ministry in the Diocese of Chester. We feel very blessed at St Luke’s to have them both and they are more than willing to help out Barrie and Roger with services which require an ordained priest. We have already been enjoying live music with Patricia playing the organ for us on Sunday mornings. On October 16th Patricia was able to preside at our HC service for the first time and sported her very attractive stole which has a story to it.

Patricia writes...

Stoles may be worn by ordained ministers or priests in various Christian denominations. In the Church of England stoles vary in colour in line with the liturgical seasons and match the colour of the altar frontals. There is much more variety in the design of stoles these days. Some are very simple – a cross or a dove for example, others are much more ornate.

The stole I wore on Sunday 16th October is my green stole - the colour for ‘Ordinary Time’. There are two periods of Ordinary Time in the Liturgical Year - from the first Sunday after Trinity until Advent Sunday and from the day after Candlemas (The Presentation of Christ in the Temple) until Ash Wednesday.

The artwork on the green stole depicts my spiritual journey and ministry from the time we lived in Macclesfield where I was a Reader, to the time we spent in the rural parishes near Knutsford when I was ordained. I love walking. For me, to walk alone can be a spiritual experience, a time to clear my mind, to be free of the pressure of everyday life and distractions, a time when I can talk to God, and listen for his guidance.

The picture on the stole shows the area around Forest Chapel - the little church is there in the hills with the lane running down to the plain. It is in that area that the River Bollin, which is the river in the picture, has its source. There are plenty of sheep up in the hills and down on the plain are Frank Cookson’s cows. Frank is one of the Churchwardens at Holy Trinity, Little Bollington which was one of the four churches where Philip was the Incumbent. There is a cross in the middle of the stole, at the top, where it goes round the neck which is traditional.

My other stoles have more simple designs which reflect the liturgical season they represent. I have yet to make my own red stole, for saints’ days, Holy Week, Pentecost - I do have one in an older design which I have used up until now.

Remember this?

FAIR TRADE DONATIONS please note...

Thanks to anyone who kindly donates tea and coffee etc to church.

Many years ago the PCC decided that we should become a Fair Trade church. Since then we have managed to obtain Fair Trade tea, coffee, sugar and even communion wine. Smaller jars/boxes are better as our usage is fairly low.

Large jars/boxes tend to oxidise and develop an unpleasant flavour. The same applies to bottles of squash. One small bottle can be used in a reasonable time, whereas large or multiple bottles once opened tend to go off and have to be thrown away. Sheila H

St Luke's Harvest, September 25th LEEK FOOD BANK UPDATE

Thank you to all who so generously contributed food items to our harvest collection for Leek food bank and thank you to Barrie for delivering it to the depot in West Street.

This year we were also blessed to have a sheaf of wheat in church kindly donated by local farmer Graham Myatt of Woodcock Hurst farm in Gratton Lane. This served as a timely reminder as to where our food actually comes from before it arrives in our shops and supermarkets.

Harvest is of course a time when we should not only be thankful for our food but also show appreciation to the farmers who work all year round and in all weathers to produce it.

We are inviting donations for the food bank on the first Sunday of each month beginning on November 6th. Please include items suitable for Christmas as these can be distributed during December. See next page.

Lindsey , project manager of Leek Food Bank for the last 4½ years, addressed both the 9.15 and 11.00 congregations:

She first thanked us for our on-going support and told us that most of the donations come from churches. There are 1300 food banks the UK which is more than the number of McDonalds outlets! Due to COVID and the increased cost of living, food banks are needed now more than ever. They supply not only food but a warm place in cold weather and a listening ear and where there is an in-house CAB advisor present. As tins and packets don't always provide the most nutritious foods the food bank has teamed up with Harrison's greengrocers in Leek Market Square where vouchers can be exchanged for fresh fruit and veg, cheese, oatcakes and eggs.

Unfortunately because donations have decreased again due to increased cost of living among donors, food has to be bought in but no-one is turned away.

Lindsey fears that worse is to come as more people become homeless. She praised her volunteers many of whom are reduced to tears by the stories they hear from the folk who come along to the West Street depot. She said that if any donors would like to have a look around they would be more than welcome.

WELCOME BACK REV ALAN and MARYANNE!

We were thrilled to have Rev Alan and Maryanne back with us at St Luke's on Sunday, October 23rd for an "official" farewell service which they had been unable to carry out due to COVID restrictions when Alan retired on July 5th 2020. Alan kindly presided over our Holy Communion service and told us that he had taken to retirement like a duck to water having been very appreciative of the set of bowls he had been able to purchase with his retirement gift. Unfortunately he had recently broken his Achilles heel which had curtailed his activities but they were both thrilled to share the exciting news that they are soon to be grandparents as daughter Rachel is expecting a baby in February. He was full of encouragement for us and spoke about St Luke our patron saint whose day was celebrated on 18th October. We pray that they continue to enjoy their retirement and to know that they will always receive a warm welcome any time they choose to visit us.

UCB Word for Today:

THE TRUTH ABOUT GIVING

5 October 2022

“He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will...increase your store of seed.”

2 Corinthians 9:10 NIV

Here is what the Bible teaches about giving: 1) You always get back more than you give. ‘He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will also supply and increase your store of seed and will enlarge the harvest of your righteousness’ (v. 10 NIV). When Paul talks here about ‘seed’, he’s talking about money. Notice, some of the money God gives you is to be used for your own needs, and some is to create ‘a harvest of righteousness’. What does that mean? Paul explains: ‘They have freely scattered their gifts to the poor; their righteousness endures forever’ (v. 9 NIV). In other words, you must show compassion towards those who are hurting and give generously to those who are unable to provide for themselves. The Bible says that when you give to the poor, you actually lend to the Lord, and He will repay you (see Proverbs 19:17). Can you imagine the interest God pays? Jesus said: ‘Give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over, will be poured into your lap. For with the measure you use, it will be measured to you’ (Luke 6:38 NIV). 2) You should give, expecting to be blessed. You say, ‘If I get more, I’ll give more.’ ‘No, you have the cart before the horse. It’s the level of your giving that determines the level of your receiving, not vice versa. So break through your barrier of fear and put God to the test. He won’t disappoint you. Once you have experienced His blessing, you will never want to live any other way.

TRY TITHING!

18 October 2022

“Try it! Put me to the test!”

Malachi 3:10 NLT

Beware of developing a sense of entitlement where you think your money is something you earned all by yourself. Anytime you struggle to give God what is rightfully His according to Scripture, it’s because you have become more attached to the gift than the giver. If you have never tried tithing, read this: ‘Bring all the tithes into the storehouse...If you do...I will open the windows of heaven for you. I will pour out a blessing so great you won’t have enough room to take it in! Try it! Put me to the test!’ (v. 10 NLT).

A pastor received this letter from a couple in his church: 'We were behind with our rent and car payments. We were forty thousand dollars [about £30,000] in debt, we'd no food in the fridge, and we'd just started a construction business. So when you challenged us to tithe as part of our Christian commitment, we thought, "How can we give what we don't have?" Nevertheless, we decided to go ahead and honour God by giving Him the first tenth of our income. The very first week we met a contractor who asked us to build a house, with more to follow. Now we no longer questioned how we'd fulfil our commitment to God; in fact, we increased our giving! And if the story ended there, it would still be a good one. But you can't outgive God. Through a series of divinely orchestrated events, we went from being renters to being homeowners. Today, we're enjoying financial blessing. And even though this story is all about trusting God, on reflection we're still trying to answer one question: "What exactly was it we sacrificed?"'
